SUCCESFUL SEASON FOR POOL LEAGUE

The Labour and Trades Club proved an excellent venue for the first presentation evening of the recently-formed Aycliffe Pool League, the spacious concert hall being an ideal setting.

A vocalist, comedian and rock group provided the enter-tainment and a cold buffet was also laid on.

The presentations rounded off the first season of the pool off the first season of the pool league and all competitions were closely contested, most of the awards not being decided until the last games. The league championship, in fact, needed a play-off to determine the winners.

MRS. THATCHER "MACABRE FEMALE GHOST"

Woodham branch of the Labour Party in Newton Ay-cliffe, Derek Foster, the prospective Parliamentary Labour candidate, warned that the country is being seduced by Mrs Thatcher into believing that she can curb the power of the trade unions by legal measures. Her more moderate shadow cabinet colleagues know that the measures she proposes can only have a marginal effect and certainly could not have prevented the present industrial troubles. Yet for these pathetic little measures she is prepared to nearer to civil strife than at any time for fifty years.

She stalks the political scene like some macabre female ghost of Colonel Blimp threatening to cut off the trade union movement at the knees. she really does not know that she cannot do it, she is too naive to lead the Tories, let alone the country. If, on the other hand she does know that she cannot do it, she is guilty of the most cynical and cruel deception ever played upon the British public, and at a most crucial time in our history.

lead the country over the precipice into five years of given the country almost five crippling confrontation and years of industrial peace and 5 or 6 weeks of industrial un-rest. Inflation has been re-duced from 30 per cent to 9 per cent. Unemployment was beginning to fall and production to rise. The pound has been stable and external payment in balance.

Last year saw a significant increase in living standards. A remarkable achievement in building the foundation of future prosperity. An achievement only possible with the co-operation of the trade unions over three years of pay restraint. The same trade unions that have now become dirty words. What short memories we have!

Sacrifices

The present battle is to persuade trade unionists not to throw away the gains bought with their own sacrifices. The problem for labour politicians is to harness this tremendous engine for social progress, the trade unions, to a constructive industrial programme of wealth creation.

Trade unionists should be in the vanguard for increased in the vanguard for increased productivity and technological change. They should be impatient for new markets and exports. They should be pressing for greater profits and for them to be spent on higher wages, better working conditions and increased local investment. investment.

Impatient

Jim Callaghan's moderate middle way is by far the most difficult path to find, and it is not surprising that the British public grows impatient for quick results and easier solu-tions. But we must return him tons. But we must return him to Downing Street to keep up the struggle, for if six weeks of industrial strife has sickened the great British public, the prospect of five years of bitter struggle under Mrs Thatcher whilst the country drifts into poverty should be enough to bring us to our senses.

Water officials see deputation about smell

More than £100,000 has wore than £100,000 lias been spent by Northumbrian Water on dealing with the smell from the Aycliffe Sewage Works. This was the information given by Authority officials to a deputation from the Great Aycliffe Town Council last week.

The deputation were told that the final phase of the work is nearing completion and the performance of the works with the improvements will be carefully monitored over the next 12 months. At the end of that time the Authority have expressed willingness to members of the Town Council again if this is necessary. Meanwhile, officers of the two bodies will keep in touch. Work at the plant has involved covering sludge tanks, improving the mixing of do-mestic sewage and trade effluent at the inlet to the works, providing for more flexible operation and for the use of chemical sprays to counteract residual smells. The final phase involves alterations to the south inlet channel.

The Authority representa-tives said that they believe these works, coupled with the continuation of the intensive level of trade effluent control, will reduce smells to the reasonable practicable minimum.

Only if there is an accident should new problems arise. The Authority said that there had only been one accident in 1978 and there was no reason to suppose that things would be significantly worse in the future

Thornaby, telephone number

PETER ROWELL TAKES OVER FOR

The voice of broadcaster Harry Rowell will be heard by millions of listeners to Radio 2 over the next fortnight when he forsakes a community radio station to "sit-in" for Pete Murray.

County Durham, the audience of the community radio station will still have a Rowell to entertain them with Harry's son, Pete, at the microphone.

Harry is Aycliffe Radio's manager, but since he started the station last June, he has had regular breaks to take over Pete Murray's "Open House."

Aycliffe Radio, one of five experimental community radio stations in Britain, broadcasts through a cable network to the town's 27,000 people.

And, for the next two weeks, the station will be in the capable hands of 20-year-old Pete Rowell.

Pete is certainly following in his father's footsteps, but until he was 14 he wasn't in-terested in radio or broad-casting at all.

Record collection

"I was given an LP record or my birthday then, liked it and began a record collection," said Pete. "This led in a roundabout sort of way to becoming interested in broadcasting." casting.

In fact Pete gave up a very promising career as a golfer to join radio. He was assistant professional at Darlington, and with a handicap of seven seemed set to make his mark on the golfing circuit.

Now he hasn't even had a round of golf in the last year. "I trained as a sound engineer in a recording studio in London," said Pete, "and have worked in hospital broadcasting and local radio in the north east." Pete has worked as a volunteer on Radio Aycliffe since it started and is now a full-time staff member. He be-lieves that community radio can provide a service which neither the RPC or ILR can hope to emulate.

"We can and do give the people in Aycliffe the music, news and features they want to hear because we have the ability to really concentrate on the community," he said. "Anyone can drop in with information and be certain that we will use it.

STOP, LOOK and

An entirely new type of publicity campaign, designed to reduce pedestrian acci-dents, began in Durham County this week.

John Tully, County Road Safety Officer, said that the unusual thing about this campaign was that it was not aimed at the pedestrian but at the driver.

the past a number of campaigns have been run with various slogans, all of which urged the pedestrian to STOP, LOOK, LISTEN.

The campaign leaflet, which will be distributed to factories, offices, churches, etc., emphasises that good drivers always watch out for the pedestrian whatever their age.

Mr Tully said many drivers did not make allowances for the unpredictable behaviour of the unpredictable behaviour of pedestrians and warned them to be particularly careful during school times, and to make allowances for the elderly who did not see or hear so well and who may have diffi-culty in assessing the speed of traffic.

He reminded motorists that pedestrians who were foolish enough to wear dark coloured clothing at night were particularly hard to see, especially during the present icy conditions, when they often walked in the road with their backs to traffic.
